Report: 55 percent increase in emergency department visits for drug-related suicide attempts by males ages 21 to 34
Medical News Today Share Link
A new national study shows that from 2005 to 2009 there was a 55 percent increase in emergency department visits for drug related suicide attempts by men ages 21 to 34 — from 19,024 visits in 2005 to 29,407 visits in 2009. In 2009, there were a total of 77,971 emergency department visits for drug-related suicide attempts among males of all ages. MORE

Virtual ER allows doctors to diagnose patients in different cities
New Mexico Business Weekly Share Link
Albuquerque-based New Mexico Software Inc., which specializes in Web-based medical software, rolled out a new system at Alta Vista's emergency room to allow neurologists working in Albuquerque to diagnose and treat Las Vegas, N.M., stroke patients without transporting them. The system instantly turns CT scans and MRIs taken by local technicians into three-dimensional online images that show details not otherwise available in normal scans. MORE

Procedural sedation and analgesia in the emergency department: Focusing on deep sedation
Emergency Medicine Share Link
Ultra-short-acting agents such as propofol and etomidate have become a mainstay of the emergency physician's armamentarium, but recent policy guidelines have placed restrictions on nonanesthesiologist-administered deep sedation. This article offers a useful discussion of preparation, monitoring, and medication considerations in deep sedation in the emergency department. MORE

Does pelvic exam in the emergency department add useful information?
Published Share Link
Physicians are taught that the pelvic exam is a key part of the evaluation of a woman presenting with abdominal pain or vaginal bleeding. However, the exam is time consuming and invasive, and its use in the emergency department has not been prospectively evaluated. We evaluated how often the findings of the pelvic exam changed management in a cohort of consecutive female patients presenting with acute abdominal pain or vaginal bleeding. MORE

F Uninsured patients 3 times more likely to use emergency departments, are sicker
Craig's Detroit Business Share Link
A report recently issued shows that the uninsured are three times more likely to seek treatment in hospital emergency departments than the insured and that they are much sicker, according to Ann Arbor, Mich.-based Center for Healthcare Research and Transformation. MORE

Malpractice reform takes step forward
Medscape Share Link
The effort by House GOP members to pass medical liability reform this congressional session may end up being more symbolic than real but, for now at least, it's being taken seriously by proponents and opponents alike. HR 5 — the Help Efficient, Accessible, Low-Cost, Timely Healthcare (HEALTH) Act of 2011 — would impose a $250,000 federal cap on noneconomic compensatory damages and limit any single party's damages to his or her percentage of responsibility. MORE

Medicaid for the middle class?
The Associated Press via NPR Share Link
President Barack Obama's health care law would let several million middle-class people get nearly free insurance meant for the poor, a twist government number crunchers say they discovered only after the complex bill was signed. MORE

Fewer Americans are getting medical coverage through their jobs than a decade ago but the 2010 U.S. health care law should help stabilize employer-sponsored insurance, two recent studies showed. MORE

ER doctors see steep increase in bath salts admissions
WISH-TV Share Link
Overdose cases involving bath salts are on the increase, according to emergency room doctors at a Fort Wayne, Ind., hospital. "Throughout the Parkview system we probably have five to 10 a week," said Dr. Corbett Smith, emergency room physician at Parkview Health. "It's really starting to become a fairly big problem in the community." MORE
