B Romancing the home
The Wall Street Journal... The latest trend in interior design has been a while in coming. First came the slow disappearance of orchids and taupe from our living rooms. Next a revival in color and pattern. Then a nostalgia for things from the past, largely fueled by the recession, which led to the rethinking and reworking of what we already had. Add to that a burgeoning green movement and a renewed interest in craftsmanship, and you have what is loosely being called the "New Romanticism"—a return to good old-fashioned British design. MORE

C Design for the S-factor, hotel owners advised
Hospitality design authority Jeffrey Orstein, founder of J/Orstein Design International, urged international hotel owners, operators and commercial real estate developers at a recent hospitality industry conference in Mumbai to design for the "S-factor" if they expect to create world-class luxury hotels that resonate with sophisticated travelers being drawn to India in record numbers. Orstein, who called for the elimination of the term "hospitality design" a few years ago, created "The S-factor" to underscore "three fundamental criteria—Style, Setting and Story—that are essential to distinguish the great—even iconic—hotels of the world from their ordinary cousins." MORE

C1 Security, Convenience, Style.
Radwin is pleased to introduce its latest security advancement, a keypad entry door lock. It features convenient one-touch locking with one-button forward's only motorized deadbolt and two customizable access codes for family, one for temporary access. The keypad lock is easy to install in a standard door prep and can be integrated with wireless home automation systems utilizing Home Connect™ technology. MORE

D A folding kitchen inaugurates the field of existential design
Theelevator.com featured some pretty crazy ways to space, from showing in the living room to hiding your bed on the ceiling. But what about the kitchen? How to pack the fridge, sink, dishwasher, counter, and even into a tight space? The answer, it turns out, is to fold them up. But is it still a kitchen? MORE

E Function key in cottage design
The Canadian Press... "I always say anyone can make a pretty room, but if it's not functional it's missed the mark," says Canadian interior designer Karen Sealy, host of a new HGTV series, "Summer Home." Sealy says a single trend to move emotionally connected to their "cottage" is a common factor than to their primary residence. "Most people will tell you that their cottage is a pretty special place," says Sealy, "so they might as well let it function for them." MORE
