Department: From Where I sit

Tracy L. Cross, NAGC President

Executive Staff Transition Announcement

I am writing to announce that after more than 10 years at the helm, Nancy Green will step down as Executive Director of NAGC, effective November 17th. As a longstanding member of NAGC and current president, I applaud Nancy’s immeasurable improvements to the organization across her decade of leadership. The strides that have been made have left us well prepared for the future.

While remaining in the association community, Nancy plans to make a significant shift in her career path by accepting a position as Executive Vice President of Association Strategies, Inc., a small business that specializes in executive search and transition management. Nancy is leaving her secure position to manage the ups and downs of a small business—being willing to take risks is something that we often tout in gifted education, and it is wonderful to see that occur among our ranks.

We will keep NAGC members informed about the search process and transition timeline as decisions are made. The capable national office staff and several board leaders will ensure that continuity of programs and services remains in place during the search. I am sure you will join me in wishing Nancy well in this exciting new chapter, which will begin in earnest AFTER the Baltimore Convention.