Media Article: The opioid crisis: Changing the culture of prescribing

Introduction by Kris Slawinski, University of Chicago, Pritzker School of Medicine

According to the attached article found on the Politico website, the current opioid crisis now affects 10% of our population, with experts predicting health care provider reeducation on pain management, and new approaches to be taught in the medical school curriculum. Both approaches will threaten patient perception ratings of hospital and clinic care. Read on to learn more...
